Not illustrated. 1826 Excerpt: ... late of Edmonton, in the County of Middlesex; and that the surplus of the money to be so raised should be laid out to the best use and advantage of the said Town, according to the decision of the majority of the Freeholders and Tenants, parties to the said agreement. The complainants proceeded to say, that the defendant had taken advantage of the circumstance that the fourscore acres in question included all the ground on which the Free Warren had been planted, and had made more money by the produce of them than he could have sold the fee inheritance of the Warren for, and likewise that he had taken advantage of the inability of the complainants to raise the necessary sum to pay the law expences, requisite to bar him from again claiming a right of Free Warren within the Parish of Rugby, excepting by ploughing the fourscore acres for one year after the defendants term should expire, and had asserted that he would not be bound by the agreement into which he had entered, but would again stock the Warren with conies; and they therefore prayed that he might be obliged to answer upon oath to certain queries, which merely embraced the points urged by the complainants. Mr. Burnaby, in his answer, admitted that he had made such an agreement as had been alleged, and that he had ploughed and sown the said fourscore acres, and received the rents and profits of the same, and hoped to be allowed to continue to do so for the term of three years, limited by the said articles; but he denied that he had ever pretended that he would not be bound thereby, or that he ever intended to plant a Warren within the Parish of Rugby after the expiration of the three years, and submitting himself to the judgment of the Court, concluded with
