

A Comparative Study of the Poem Guillaume Dangleterre: With a Dialectic Treatment of the Manuscripts, a Dissertation Presented to the Board of ... of Doctor of Philosophy (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from A Comparative Study of the Poem Guillaume Dangleterre: With a Dialectic Treatment of the Manuscripts, a Dissertation Presented to the Board of University Studies of the Johns Hopkins University for the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy In Romania, VIII, p. 315, Professor Paul Meyer expressed the hope that some one would compare the version of the poem of Guillaume d Angleterre kept in the Bibliothefque Nationale with that which he had discovered in the St. Johns College Library, Cambridge, and publish a reconstructed text. The ultimate design would be to decide, if possible, upon the actual author of this poem. With this object in view, I obtained a copy of the Paris manuscript without difficulty, and of the Cambridge manuscript through the kindness of Miss Lucy Toulmin Smith. In the summer of 1896, I went to Cambridge and thence to Paris, where I collated in turn the manuscript copies which I had with the originals, and availed myself of the large collections of books to be found in the foreign libraries. In the Bibliotheque de I Arsenal, at Paris, I found another manuscript of the poem on which I was working (which proved, however, to be a copy of the original existing in the Bibliotheque Nationale), made for L. de St. Palaye, and annotated in his handwriting. After having pursued my work for several months, I learned through the preface to the edition of Erec and Enide, which Professor Foerster published in 1896, that the well-known editor of Chrestien de Troyes had the poem Guillaume d Angleterre practically reconstructed, and was holding it back in order to publish the work at the close of his edition of the longer poems of the Champagne author, whom he regarded as the undoubted source of the Guillaume.
